Six young couples face different challenges in different situations. They build relationships or lose them. "These first 50 facts explain so much that I couldn't help but share them with you," Roman Shayduko told me. Oddly enough, but in this post there are no real facts from the life of the people around. I just told a little story that happened to me, my friend and her husband. And what conclusions you draw, that this is true or not, is up to you ... So let's go! 1. There is no perfect couple in the world. This is an axiom. And it's not that one of the partners is perfect, and the other is not. And the fact is that each person has his own way in this world and his own character. Roman and Irina chose each other. They are from Ukraine. Their surname is unusual (they say that Ukrainians have such a surname in their blood). We met quite by chance. Irina often worked, and Roman was an ordinary student. They found a common language very quickly. For a very long time they met without any stamps. Sex was ordinary and their house was ordinary. But now 17 years of their life together have already passed, and there is no trace of a stamp in the passport. Can this be considered a mistake? I won't say... For any couple, the first hundred years are the most difficult. So much happens in the life of every person in the first hundred and ten years that then there is no point in repeating it. Another thing is that the person himself, who began to live with another person, during this period is very difficult to understand, realize and rethink something. In addition, the other side is also not always at odds with itself and its thoughts. It's just that people love another person (often even despite the fact that they have been living together for a long time) and thus they create a kind of vacuum into which they are gradually drawn both. To prevent this from happening, there is a simple rule - you need to live together in harmony. The consent of the spouses in this matter is sometimes simply vital. It's like a child with parents. If at least one of the parents is dissatisfied with the state of affairs, then all the tension of the situation is immediately felt. Since sometimes people do not know how to negotiate, therefore, quarrels begin here. Everyone wants to live their own life, to become an independent person. Often this happens due to the fact that people do not yet have their own housing, their own social circle. They are closed in the apartments of their parents and relatives. For these reasons, spats are very common in relationships
