

Q: ElasticSearch. How to parse elasticsearch time range queries Example search query:

{"size":10,"query":{"bool":{"must_not":{}}}} Query

fields: dateTime: 2015-07-02T00:00:00Z pub_date:

2015-07-02T00:00:00Z Problem with this query is that it returns matches from 2015-07-02T00:00:00Z to

2015-07-03T00:00:00Z. How can I make sure that it returns only 2015-07-02T00:00:00Z to 2015-07-03T00:00:00Z? A: According to the docs you need to add a `must_not_exists: { }` to the query to specify how your result should match the filter.

{"size":10,"query":{"bool":{"must_not":{"must_not_exists":{}}}}

Q: Can someone explain why an integer pointer and an int are different types? I'm trying to write a program to swap the value of two variables in C. I have the following code: `int *variable1 = (int *)0x00000000; int *variable2 = (int *)0x00000000; int *variable3 = (int *)0x00000000; int *variable4 = (int *)0x00000000; int *temp = (int *)0x00000000; int w = variable1; int e = variable2; int y = variable3; int x = variable4; temp = &w;`

w = &e; e = &x; x = &y; std::swap(w, e); std::swap(x, y);
If I were to output what this program was printing, it would be: *variable1 = 0x00000000 *variable2 = 0x00000000
*variable3 = 0x00000000 *variable4 = 0x00000000 *w =
0x00000001 *e = 0x00000002 *x = 0x00000003 *y = 0x00000004 temp = (int *)0x00000000 = (int
*)0x00000000 w = (
